The World Earth Day was held on April 22nd, 1970. Since then, people have started to know we should take care of the earth and protect it.

It is our duty to protect the environment and live the low carbon life. As social citizens, all of us can do something to help. We can save water by taking short showers, we can turn off the lights when we leave our rooms in time and try to use both sides of paper to save money. When we buy things, we should take our own cloth bags instead of plastic ones.

It's certain even the simplest everyday activities can make a difference to the environment. If everyone tries their best to protect the environment, we will have a better life.
